Cơm Home

A Rice Brothers pop-up restaurant · Hosted by Jin & Vin

FRESH Lighter, everyday plates — rice, broth, greens, lean protein.

FEAST The indulgent ones. Worth it. Not every day.

Rice Cơm

Bacon & Rice — FEAST
Jasmine rice, crisp bacon bits, a little of the bacon fat folded through.

Fried Rice — FRESH
Day-old rice, eggs, peas and carrots, whatever's in the fridge. Our house version.

Cơm Tấm — FRESH
Broken rice — the small grains left over from milling — with a grilled pork chop, a fried egg and a spoon of scallion oil.

Spicy Ricy — FEAST
Jasmine rice, sriracha, and a decent amount of freshly squeezed lime juice. That's it.

Cơm Cháy — FEAST
The crispy rice from the bottom of the pot. Fried golden, salted, and fought over.

Soups Canh & Phở

Phở — FRESH
Beef bone broth, rice noodles, thin-sliced beef, a pile of herbs.

Bún Bò Huế — FRESH
The spicy one from Huế. Lemongrass, chili, thick rice noodles, beef and pork.

Pork Soup — FRESH
Clear pork broth with vegetables. The one you make when someone has a cold.

Basil Soup — FRESH
Light broth finished with a big handful of Thai basil.

Tacos & Tortillas

Tacos — FRESH
Weeknight ground-beef tacos, twelve in twenty-five minutes.

Steak Tortilla — FRESH
Marinated steak, sliced thin, rolled in a warm tortilla.

Spaghetti Tacos — FEAST
Yes. Spaghetti. In a taco. Vin's idea and he stands by it.

Breakfast Bữa sáng

Ốp La & Bagel — FEAST
Vietnamese fried eggs (ốp la), runny in the middle, on a toasted bagel.

Bacon & Eggs with Cheese — FEAST
The classic, with cheese melted over the top.

Mash-ups

Spaghetti Pizza — FEAST
A pizza base with spaghetti and sauce on top. Two dinners, one plate.

Cameroni & Cheese — FEAST
Mac and cheese made with the biggest pasta we can find.

Sauces Nước chấm

Sriracha Ketchup — FEAST
Half and half. Goes on everything above.

Cơm is Vietnamese for cooked rice. It sounds like "come." Come home; dinner's on. — Jin, Vin & Dad